At least a million men will not believe... SATURDAY, JANUARY 16, 1863.

REPEAL OF THE UNION

Nothing can be more familiar to the ears of every class of Britishers, than the once-famous "Repeal of the Union." Time was when meetings were held and speeches made to electrify Ireland and terrify England...

There can be no doubt that the "Repeal of the Act of Union" would at the present age be one of the greatest boons to Ireland, as it would restore to her, her Parliament and Executive, and render her less dependent on England...

Blind to their own interests, deceived by a set of superficial politicians, the Argentine Repealers are labouring to effect what the Irish complain of, namely, the removal of the Parliament and Government Offices.

But our present object is to complete, more than attack, M. Varela. He has recently arrived from Euro; he has recently followed citizens regard him as a man of superior experience.

But our present object is to complete, more than attack, M. Varela. He has recently arrived from Euro; he has recently followed citizens regard him as a man of superior experience.

Dr. Alherdi tries to prove, by theory, that the Argentine Republic, with the capital in Buenos Ayres, is a moral impossibility; but we have already had the experience of more than a year and a half of the working of the system...

Editorial Table... The steamer 31 is the talk of the day. Crowds were down on the Mole yesterday watching the news from Martin Garcia.

Hector V. Varela... Whatever may be the opinion of Argentines respecting the 'Standard'—a paper, neither the language nor principles of which they have the means of forming a correct judgment—our subscribers will do us the justice to say that we avoid personalities, or matters which are calculated to excite but feeling without any sense.

The Liverpool Advertiser... The Liverpool Advertiser, it appears to be the only paper in England which makes room for the most notorious attacks on this country.

The Times... The Times, it is well known, is a paper which is not only a paper, but a power. It is a power which is not only a power, but a power.

Such is the province which has been brought to the verge of ruin by a petty...

San Juan is quiet and dedicating all the energies of her people towards developing her mineral riches.

San Luis we really cannot say to a certainty whether it will remain Argentine territory or be handed over to the Indians for good.

Eight vessels entered the port of Rosario during the month of December and twenty six sailed and returned.

An important item in a commercial way is the fact of a wine trade having been opened between Mendoza, San Juan, Rioja and Rosario.

It is now two years since we first commenced writing on this important subject, showing the absurdity of importing twenty thousand pipes of wine from Spain and Italy.

People have at last opened their eyes to this business which will soon assume very important dimensions.

The wine of Rioja are equal to the best of France and Spain, and we have a sample now before us when in England, would be worth fifteen shillings the gallon, as it is to be bought here for three and sixpence.

Nacion Argentina—An article headed 'I am should be the same for all appears in the 'Xenion' Argentine.
