Great and Useful Invention.
No more Mortality for want of Water.
Sure wealth to Estancieros By the Robert Apparatus.
Being notorious the immense injury occasioned by the scarcity of water during the long (seca) that afflict the camps of Buenos Ayres, I have determined to dedicate to the Estancieros an Apparatus at once simple and infallible for procuring as much water as they may require.
120 Bordaiesas per hour (it seems fabulous) is procured with my apparatus, without fear of at any time its getting out of order.
The machine is worked by one horse and in one day's work can give 144 Bordaiesas; that is to say, sufficient water for 20,000 head of cattle.
By these figures can be calculated the immense advantages gained by its use.
Another advantage is the facility of putting it together and taking it to pieces, so as to be able to transport it to any place where it may be necessary to use it, either for watering purposes or others.
GREAT MODIFICATION.
I have made an improvement in my Apparatus, applying a new system which reduces the necessary force two thirds, giving it at the same time more rapidity.
Those interested can see it at Calle Moreno, No. 346 (Henerrado, Paris).
One sole inspection of the Apparatus will prove to them the superiority of it over any other. ROBERT. j 29. 2 m.

All that is good will yet non audeam dicere. Tuesday, March 8, 1861.

Inauguration of the Great Southern Railway.

TURNING THE FIRST SOIL. The function of yesterday was the grandest and most felicitous since the era of Independence, and exceeded anything in all the annals of Buenos Ayres. The citizens seem to have delivered themselves up entirely to the happy event, and the word in every mouth was, 'this is a great day for Buenos Ayres.'

The carriages were ordered to remain in the lawn of the Convalecencia, thus leaving the road free; and a small piquet of police attended to maintain order, although their services were needless. The entrance was gracefully decorated with evergreens and flags, and a bevy of the fair daughters of the neighbourhood welcomed the guests with wreathed smiles.

A tall covered bridge was erected where the first sod was to be turned, and here a group of people was collected. We returned from one that here stood the first soldier erected in Buenos Ayres, the proprietor having been, as our informant said, 'a real English gentleman.'

Mr. Parish opened the proceedings. He said—May it please your Excellencies, we are met here to-day to commence the works of the Great Southern Railway. On the part of the company I now ask you to assume these instruments of industry in the presence of the assemblage who have come hither to do homage to so great a celebration, for this may be called the first fruits of that peace which we now so happily enjoy.

Mr. Parish then turned the first sod, and here in presence of the Argentine people and Government, this legion will set forth on the trace before your view, to overturn the Pampas and conquer the ancient territory claimed by the Spanish discoverers.

Mr. Lawson then spoke. It falls to me to respond to the generous sentiments of the English Minister. Experience has proved that there is no longer a clash of national interests, and the only rivalry is that of mutual assistance. In the River Plate we only want capital, intellect, and population, and there are thousands of active Europeans now looking for somewhere to occupy their industry.

The banquet was laid out in the tent lately belonging to M. Champlain, and now erected on the bastion close to the Convalecencia road: thither the Directors invited the guests to accompany them, and we formed in procession, being lined on either side by a corps of 300 navvies, who shouldered their arms in military style.

Ladies and Gentlemen—In the name of the Company and of my colleagues I salute the Argentine people and Government, not in mere formality, but with sincere gratitude for the new link of unity between our countrymen and the citizens of the republic.

of men and capital, and enrich the land. I give you, therefore, the health of the most illustrious man in the republic—General Bartolomé Mitre.

The toast was drunk with three cheers, the band playing the National Hymn. President Mitre rose to reply: In returning the cordial salute of the Chairman to me and to all of us as guests, I regret that I cannot consider my English friends present as guests in this country.

Mr. Thornton replied—I am exceedingly grateful for the kind expressions used towards my honored and beloved Sovereign. As representative of the English people, I am glad to see this new sign of mutual friendship. There is a community of interests between B. Ayres and Great Britain, which perpetuates this unity, and I am confident nothing serious will ever disturb our relations.

Mr. Lawson then spoke. It falls to me to respond to the generous sentiments of the English Minister. Experience has proved that there is no longer a clash of national interests, and the only rivalry is that of mutual assistance. In the River Plate we only want capital, intellect, and population, and there are thousands of active Europeans now looking for somewhere to occupy their industry.

M. Lefebvre de Becour rose to reply. In the name of my august master, Napoleon III., and on the part of my countrymen and fellow-Europeans, I thank you. Truly, this enterprise is of great importance for the fine province of Buenos Ayres, and as much so to foreigners, who will here find untold sources of wealth.

Dr. Elizalde said: To-day we celebrate one of the great designs of the first conquerors, invading the Pampas. When the lonely inhabitant of the campaign sees a cloud of dust, he knows it is the approach of plundering Indians, but soon the smoke of the locomotive will bring him a more cheering omen.

General Mitre replied. Having been partly the subject of the compliments just uttered, I am bound to say that I regard myself only as the representative of those worthy men who have aided me. Just as that general who crowned himself in presence of the army saying, 'My soldiers gained this, and in their name I accept it.'

there is room here for development. Here we have Englishmen, whose countrymen opened up Eastern commerce; Frenchmen, who first entered Liberty in 1789; Spaniards, from whose blood we are descended; Portuguese, who boast the daring navigation that explored the Indian seas; Americans, who give us the principles of Republican institutions, and whose country is now a picture of bloodshed.

Dr. Costa said—I drank with pleasure the health of Queen Victoria, and of the sponsors, but now I give you a equally loyal one—'To the far West, and especially the English ladies, whose conquests are those of liberty and beauty' (loud cheers).

Mr. Parish said—I return thanks for the kind manner in which you have toasted the Directors. It has been truly said there are no barriers between nations. We introduce steam to aid the progress of the country, and I trust we shall leave a legacy to our children in this enterprise.

Mr. Santamaria said—For fear we should omit some important toasts, I will ask permission to give the following list:— 1. The Provincial Legislature, who passed the bill.

THE CRISIS IS PAST.

'Thank God, the terrors of the drought are over, and the farmers released from a danger which at one time boded little short of universal ruin. Very few towns-people know what our country friends suffered, and very few of the latter will forget the trying season now happily concluded.

THE PACIFIC

We have dates from Valparaiso up to 13th ult., and from Santiago till the 15th inst. In Chile, everything was very quiet...

On the 20th January the city of Copiapó ran a narrow chance of suffering from a novel disaster.

It would appear that a captain of a company of the 3rd of the line of the Chile army had been struck with the same idea as the great Blucher...

Peru was also quiet, and Government was turning its attention to reforming the different branches of the administration.

In Venezuela peace had been again restored. On the 24th December the Chamber of Legislation was opened by 69 deputies.

The treaty of peace between Ecuador and Colombia has been exchanged. Mosquera evacuated the province of Imbabura and retired to Colombia.

By the foregoing, it will be seen that all proper precautions had been taken by the Government...

The body of serenitos retired from their posts, last night, the greater part of the time nothing having happened.

NOTHING NEW.

The above means that lots of robberies were attempted, but the serenitos were not annoyed by them in the slightest.

C.—You are, at all times, to avoid rows, and cast an indulgent eye on the city views.

Serenos—We will rather sleep than talk. We know what belongs to a watch.

C.—Why, you speak like an ancient and most quiet sereno—for I cannot see how sleeping should offend—only have a care that your spears be not stolen.

C.—Why, then, let them alone till they are sober; if they make you then not the better answer, you may say they are not the men you took them for.

Serenos—How, if they will not stand? C.—Why, then, take no note of him, but let him go; and presently call the rest of the watch together, light cigars, and thank God you are rid of a knave.

GAMBLING.

By the laws of nature each race of the human species has its besetting sin. Wherever the Anglo-Saxons are to be found, there is also the fire-water which drowns body and soul.

THE SHERIDAN SUIT.

Mr. Editor, Having read in the Standard of this morning a notice of a law suit now pending before the tribunals of this country, and which has reference to my family—however reluctant I may feel, and chagrined as I am to see my name brought before the public in connexion with that vexed and most disagreeable question...

How often does 'Cosmopolite' exclaim a centenary to happen? He seems to grumble at its occurring so seldom. SHAKESPEARE CENTENARY.

Buenos Ayres, March 8, 1864. To the Editors of the 'Standard' Gentlemen, Seeing a letter, signed 'Cosmopolite,' in your paper of to-day, proposing to get up a Shakespeare Commemoration, the spirit strongly moves me (more particularly as I have just come from the Scotch Church) to make a few remarks on the divine William, as our Gallic neighbours call the 'swan'.

SEVEN'S THE MAIN.

I am averse to this commemoration for two reasons, one purely personal, it is:—If the commemoration be held, we will be patronising a dead man, and leaving one of his most able exponents in South America on one side.
