INAVIGATION OF THE GREAT SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

TURNING THE FIRST BOD.

The function of yesterday was the grandest and most felicitous since the era of Independence, and exceeded anything in all the annals of Buenos Ayres. The citizens seem to have delivered themselves up entirely to the happy event, and the word in every mouth was, 'this is a great day for Buenos Ayres.'

Mr. Pariah opened the proceedings. He said—May I assure your Excellency, we are not here to-day to commence the work of the Great Southern Railway. On the part of the company I now ask you to assume these instruments of industry in the presence of the assembly who have come hither to do homage to so great a celebration...

of men and capital, and enrich the land. I give you, therefore, the health of the most illustrious man in the Republic—General Batolomé Mitre. The toast was drunk with these cheers, the band playing the National Hymn.

Mr. Thornton rose to reply: In returning the cordial salute of the Chairman to us, he has called the first fruits of that peace which we now so happily enjoy. This is a new proof of the stability which results from your prudent administration, and it is now in a hand of valiant workmen waiting only the order to march that they may commence a work destined to benefit this country, and in which I promise you, they will neither falter nor slacken till it arrive at a glorious completion...

Mr. Thornton replied—I am exceedingly grateful for the kind expressions used towards my honored and beloved Sovereign. As representative of the English people, I am glad to see this new sign of mutual friendship. There is a community of interests between B. Ayres and Great Britain, which perpetuates this unity...

pliments just uttered. I am bound to say that I regard myself only as the representative of the worthy men who have aided me. Just as that general who crowned himself in presence of the army saying, 'My soldiers gained this, and in their name I accept it.'

Mr. Pariah said—I return thanks for the kind manner in which you have treated the Directors. It has been truly said there are no barriers between nations. We reproduce success and progress of the country, and I trust we shall leave a legacy to our children in this enterprise...

There is room here for development. Here we have Englishmen, who, as countrymen, opened up Eastern commerce; Frenchmen, who first opened Liberty in 1789; Spaniards, from whose blood we are descended; Portuguese, who boast the daring navigation that explored the Indian seas; and Americans, who give us the principles of Republican institutions, and whose country is now a picture of bloodshed...

Mr. Pariah said—I return thanks for the kind manner in which you have treated the Directors. It has been truly said there are no barriers between nations. We reproduce success and progress of the country, and I trust we shall leave a legacy to our children in this enterprise...

THE CRISIS IS PAST.

Thank God, the terrors of the drought are over, and the farmers released from a danger which at one time bedded little short of universal ruin. Very few towns-people know what our country friends suffered, and very few of the latter will forget the trying season now happily concluded. Inevitably it is a fault that always brings its own punishment, and those who count on uninterrupted prosperity are often surprised and prostrated at the first reverse.

Mr. Pariah said—For fear I should omit some important trusts, I will ask permission to give the following resolutions: 1. The Provincial Legislature, who passed the bill. 2. The Municipality, who lent every assistance. 3. Our absent friends, including Messrs. Lumb and Riestra. 4. The firm of Peto Betts, the great contractors of the world...

A special covered bridge was erected where the street and water were turned, and here a group of people were collected. We returned from one that he stood the first salivator erected in Buenos Ayres, the proprietor having been so far invited by the English gentleman. From this spot we could distinctly see the land marked for giving the first stroke in this great enterprise; the ladies and gentlemen forming a semi-circle close to the platform.

The banquet was laid out in the tent lately belonging to M. Champlain, and next to the station. The Convocacion road; thither the Directors invited the guests to accompany them, and we formed in procession, being accompanied by a corps of 350 navies, who shouldered their arms in military style. In the tent was a ladies' gallery, occupied by about twenty of the most distinguished ladies of the city, and the ladies of the Convocacion road; thither the Directors invited the guests to accompany them, and we formed in procession, being accompanied by a corps of 350 navies, who shouldered their arms in military style.

Dr. Llanos then spoke. In following me to respond to the generous sentiments of the English Minister. Experience has proved that there is no longer a clash of national interests, and the only rivalry that of mutual assistance. In the River Plate we only want capital, intellect, and population, and there are thousands of active Europeans now in search of means to occupy their industry. There was a time when the River Plate rejected foreign immigration, when the rivers were closed with the idea of repelling civilization; but the genius of progress burst the cable, and our waters were soon covered with the fleets of other countries. What joy did not our fathers feel at the prospect of a bright future for Buenos Ayres!

At length the bonifant rains of Heaven fell, and the throne of deliverance; the grass began to grow, which had blotted out every trace of vegetation. Since then, we have had a most abundant and every day brought down favourable accounts from North and South. Already numbers of our countrymen are homeward bound, more joyful than ever shippedrecked mariners onching dry land. Home, with all its cares, again comes in view, and the familiar umbra tree is blessed as an old friend who has outlived the danger, and now bids them welcome. But, alas! their sorrows are not over, or perhaps yet half known. How many a ranchero has been plundered of the little it contained, by wandering ganches! and some will find a few lechered sticks where once their home stood. Others, who had been unable to send in their wool, have lost the hard-earned gains of last year; they will be, however, able to begin again with the capital they have saved; they must rebuild their ranches, wrecked by the lawless elements, or by the yet more lawless ganches; they must set up new corrales, for the former have been broken down by the wind or stray cattle; they must purchase fresh stores, for what they left has either grown mould or been carried off; they must look out for clothes and house utensils in the same manner; they must, perhaps, seek medical assistance for themselves or families, injured by intemperance and exposure; they must get a friendly loan to meet these expenses. And for those who are ruined; they have no alternative, after so many years of labour and privation, but enter the service of their more fortunate neighbors...

There is now no danger for the rest of the year...

SAVINGS BANK
BANK MAUS & CO.
No. 103 calle de Cangallo.

The immense advantages of Accounts current are now so generally felt, and appreciated in the L. & O. great emporium of the River Plate—Montevideo & Buenos Ayres—that there are very few Merchants who fail to keep one at the Bank in which they place the most confidence.

The Bank of Maus & Co. in Montevideo has already provided for the working class in that city, a safe & profitable depository for their savings.

The sums deposited in that most important institution are daily increasing and already reach a very large amount.

These advantages have not hitherto been enjoyed in this city by an immense number of Clerks, artisans, working-men & servants of all classes & conditions, who are equally interested in putting their savings out at interest, thus providing themselves with a reserve fund in case of need, riches or old age, instead of spending them in the immoral gambling, in lotteries and other frivolities.

The Bank of Maus and Co. of this city following the example of their Buenos Ayres September 19th 1863.

WILLIAM LESLIE.

ENGLISH GRAMMAR SCHOOL, CALLE LARGA DE BARRAOCAS, DON J. PONGERRARD, of the London University College.

This Establishment, which from its foundation has been patronised by the principal British families of Buenos Ayres, is an exact reproduction of an English School, where a sound commercial education combined with the acquisition of the French and Spanish languages is imparted to the pupils, and based upon the same system as in all first class European institutions of the kind.

An ever-watchful and constant supervision, and a strict maintenance of order and propriety, are a sufficient guarantee of the morals and behaviour of the pupils carefully attended to.

The different branches taught in the English Grammar School comprise the English, French and Spanish languages, History, Geography, Arithmetic, and Book-keeping in all its parts, Writing, and Book-keeping Instruction.

Extra branches, such as Latin, Mathematics, German, Music and Drawing, are also taught by special masters.

The situation of the English Grammar School, in one of the most delightful quarters of the Calle Larga de Barraocas, in the very centre of the city, is one of the most beautiful and picturesque of the environs of Buenos Ayres.
