The Elections. The elections last Sunday only took place in a few parishes.

It will be said, of course, by partisan politicians, that justices of the peace have a perfect right to resign when they please, and that it is on those terms they accept office.

It appears, as far as we can learn, that in the parishes where the justices resigned, there was a most overwhelming majority of what is called 'cosidos'.

In treating of this matter, we believe politics altogether aside, for we put politics holding such positions as that of judge, should remember their oaths before anything else, and that the judge who allows politics to guide his conduct, takes that peculiar view of his duties which too often leads to the extension of crime.

We charge the justices of the peace, who resigned on Sunday, with nothing, as we understand so little about their politics; but we merely wish to call public attention to the fact, that the acceptance of office in this country seems to imply no moral obligation for the fulfillment of its duties.

The elections on Sunday proved a magnificent boom. At the Mercad and College, the justices of the peace having resigned, no table could be formed.

The weather is so dry, that the farmers are beginning to be alarmed. Verily, it would seem as if there was a curse on the country, for the drought in the camp, and the political excitement in town, are keeping up the race, which terminates at the goal of ruin and revolution.

As we said before, it requires a peculiar sort of training to be able to look at its resignation, business in the light in which the friends of these justices wish. It may be justifiable, it may be proper, but we confess, we do not understand it.

As regards Flores, who, it appears, is now in London, we are glad to hear that he is taken, and it is thought will be hung. In Fray Bentos there is a regular hub-bub; every one is leaving the place, even our new agent has received a threatening notice, and is advised to leave the town.

The Richmond 'Examiner' of the 28th says that for several days past the Government has been in possession of facts that hinted, beyond a doubt, to the existence of a secret organization of disloyal men, having for its object the forcible release of the prisoners held at Libby and on Belle Isle.

Our colleagues, the 'Tribuna,' published its interesting packet review the day after the mail for Europe closed. We are surprised that D Hector should make such an egregious blunder.

The Southern Starving. By a sailing vessel arrived on Sunday, we have dates from the States to the 10th Feb.

A meeting has been held in New York, and resolutions were passed, calling upon General McClellan to take the field.

Richmond is in a most feverish state and a conspiracy to murder President Davis has been detected.

General Meade contemplates a move on General Lee.

The New York money market was depressed. Exchange on England had gone up to 175. Gold, last quotations, 159 1/2.

We give full particulars of the panic created in London on Saturday and Sunday by the reported approach of our troops at Hottens Bridge.

I arrived here on the 27th June 1863, and was of course unwearied if any default had been made in the payment of this or any other tax.

The immense advantages of accounts current are now so generally felt, and appreciated in the great metropolis of the River Plate - Montevideo & Buenos Ayres - that there are very few merchants who fail to keep one at the bank in which they place the most confidence.
