SAURDAY, APRIL 16, 1861.

STANDARD PATRIOTISM.

Public spirit is so rare, and party feeling so acrimonious in Buenos Ayres, that we gladly find a proof of patriotism and benevolence given by the much-abused Crudo party...

On Wednesday the local Chamber of Deputies will assemble to ratify the recent elections of members for this province. It is said there will be a large majority in favour of legalising the elections...

We have received from the National Finance Office the Customs report for the year, ending December 31st 1860. It contains the following particulars...

As no doubt many of our readers will be surprised to find that the National Government is indebted in the following heavy items to the Province of Buenos Ayres...

EDITOR'S TABLE. Domestic calamities are on the increase. On Friday morning a respectable youth named Maximo—reading in this city, went to visit his lady lover near the Bonadonia, calle St. Fe...

The new loan of 14 million silver dollars to the National Government will probably relieve it from its present embarrassment. It is, however, strange that after taking printing materials, paper, and passengers' luggage the steamer is still so reduced...

Mr. Wells has some idea of making an ascent from the Plaza Paroqui to the balcony is at present on the roof of the Colón theatre. He says an ascent of two miles, into the clouds, is only a trifle, if he can get good gas...

THE LATEST FROM M. DEMARCHEL. With reference to our account in yesterday's paper, M. Demarchel has paid us a visit to request us to inspect his premises and the scene of conflagration. He seems to think there are some inaccuracies in our report...

With reference to our account in yesterday's paper, M. Demarchel has paid us a visit to request us to inspect his premises and the scene of conflagration. He seems to think there are some inaccuracies in our report...

The blazing kitchen is under the same roof as M. Demarchel, but Mrs. F. Quiroga, who is his mother-in-law, has a separate suite of apartments and to this belongs the kitchen in question. The housewife, however, is the owner of his own kitchen and is not blazing.

It is certain that M. Demarchel has great precautions against fire. He has a large number of extinguishers and pipes full of water, also a fire-engine which he procured from London, always ready for his own use...

The performance of this opera on Friday evening gave general satisfaction. The house was not very full, although a large number of English were present. The curtain did not rise until a quarter before nine o'clock.

In the opening scene the chorus was weak, and Lemli rather out of voice, but the orchestra made up for such defects. The duo between Lemli and Figaro was very good, Walter playing the "barber" with great spirit...

The Argentine Central Railway. The 'Times' speaking of this railway, says: "It is one of the most important undertakings that has been started for many years, and it is supposed that it will be placed on the Stock Exchange to-morrow (7th March) under the auspices of the General Financial Association."

The capital guaranteed is £1,000,000, but only £1,000,000 is required at present. Seven per cent is guaranteed by the Buenos Ayres National Government, whose credit is so firmly settled in this country by its punctuality in discharging its debts...

TWO SUBJECTS OF PUBLIC INTEREST.—One of a purely local and the other of a more general character—are now dividing the attention of France. The question of local interest is the coming election in Paris; but this is diverted of much of its interest by the conduct of the French Government in declining to maintain a large number of candidates...

This distinguished and munificent Irishman breathed his last on Thursday morning, at his residence, Richmond Hill, near Liverpool. In his life he forcibly illustrated the maxim, a peaceful action receives honour in his own country. Born in the town of Ballynure, in the county of Antrim...

THE BARBERE DI SIVIGLIA. The performance of this opera on Friday evening gave general satisfaction. The house was not very full, although a large number of English were present. The curtain did not rise until a quarter before nine o'clock.

Robberies—The 'National' states that the gentleman who was stabbed while standing with his wife at his street-door, Cincin E. Quinas, was named Joaquin Costa.

Valid Information—The 'Nacion Argentina' informs its readers that yesterday was Saturday. We have heard, by this mail, from most reliable authority (we do not care to give the name of one of Her Majesty's Ministers, but we may hint that his name begins with a P) that Christmas-day this year will be on the 24th December.

Steamer Sicilia—The 'Tribuna' mentions that it has seen a letter, written by one of the passengers who left Rio de Janeiro by her on the 19th January, and it would appear as though the Sicilia had had a very peck of troubles. On the 21st January, two days after leaving Rio, she broke her screw, and after having it repaired on the 24th February, she broke it again four days afterwards. She proceeded under sail to San Vicente. During the voyage, a young Portuguese passenger died, and the other passengers, who were crowded together with hunger, as the steamer was anything but well provided with provisions. Clyde vessels have, of late, acquired all over the world a most undesirable reputation for shabby treatment of passengers, and at this rate the Sicilia is not very likely to restore them in the good graces of the public.
