RIOTS AT THE CHAMBERS.

For the last few days this city has been delivered up to a drunken mob of the lowest scum of society. Knives and pistols have set all law and order at defiance, and blood has flowed freely at the doors of the Senate-house. Peaceable foreigners have been accidentally shot near their own houses, printing offices have been attacked, while such symptoms of revolution as tearing up the street pavements have suspended business and closed most shops in the city.

Meantime the mob is triumphant and it is perfect anarchy. The public and especially to foreigners, whether the armed ruffians belong to Crudos or Cocidos, when life and property are placed in jeopardy by both these absurd factions. All the dens of vice and infamy have been emptied to lend proselytes to either grotto, and three hundred of the greatest ruffians ever seen collected in a choice assembly have been arrayed to the teeth to carry terror throughout the city.

Only respectable people kept away from the scene of rioting, knowing that it is only a contest between a dozen political gamblers. A few persons casually passing by this focus of disorder found themselves involved in the row. Mr. Bailin juror was wounded by a pistol-ball, Capt. Lague was shot in the abdomen, and several wounded spectators carried off to the Police. It seems a very bad case, and the Club Pueblo, the Chamber announcing that there would be no session till tomorrow, when most of the Cocidos quietly returned home. A band of Crudos then beset the Chamber with the apparent object of taking the place, but were driven off. A Cocido faction was also preparing to attack the Chamber office, and a body of military from the Cabildo was required to disperse them.

As soon as the Cocidos found out the trick played them they ran to the Cancha in Calle Tacuabó, and there they were. Meantime the Crudo leaders hanged their adherents in the marketplace, and prepared to resist the military in case of attack. We are told that boxes of arms were distributed to the Crudos in the Chamber, and the Tribune admits that they were leading ruffians inside. The Chamber's attack on the Cocidos this morning amounted, it is said, to 30. It is probable the riots would have been fearful, had not President Mitre requested Dr. Gutierrez (chief of the Cocidos) to withdraw his party from the contest.

At four o'clock the alarm through town was general, and it was feared a terrible episode would take place after about two hours later the indignant Cocidos began to assemble at the Nacional Argentina office, and their numbers in the early part of the night was over a thousand.

Patrols of horse and foot permeated the city on Friday night, and a number of dangerous characters were arrested and conveyed to the Police. We are informed that a crowd collected in front of the entrance about 10 p.m., and some shots were fired, but whether by the sentinels or mob is not clear. The night passed, however, quietly in the centre of the town, although most people were getting their fire-arms in readiness for any eventuality. An Englishman stated that he was assaulted in Plaza Victoria by a ruffian who attempted to snatch his watch, but who soon measured his length on the flag.

In the suburbs there was much firing, and several people after a sleepless night, came in yesterday morning, to enquire whether it was the Government from the capital. The reports yesterday of the wounded were more favorable, and the number of killed does not pass two or three. Among those arrested is a brother of Colonel Corcos, who went up to a body of Cocidos in the plaza, wounding him with the white handkerchief of the Crudos, a defiance.

THE SESSION OF SENATORS

ELECTIONS ANNULLED

THREATENING VIOLENCE

On yesterday morning everybody seemed anxious to learn whether we were going to have a renewal of the riots. It was known that the senators were to meet, and the general opinion was, that they would annul the elections. At an early hour the Cocido rendezvous, in Calle Tacuabó, was thronged with the best faction, and as their numbers were more than double their opponents, a physical (certainly not moral) demonstration was resolved on. The Crudo party had, through the influence of the Provincial Government, procured all the navies and posters of the Western Railway, who were armed, in direct violation of the law, in order to check the overpowering mob of Cocidos. The latter, as we are credibly informed, then armed 'en masse' 600 were furnished with muskets, 400 with revolvers, and the rest variously, making a formidable faction of 2,000 men.

Not were the Crudos inactive; the boarding-knives, pistols, &c., were given out gratis to every man wearing a white handkerchief, and armoured drove such a flourishing trade, that even some bootmakers exposed their wares for sale in their windows. The genius of disturbance, M. Hector Varela, was driving about in a carriage, spitting the whirlwind, and looking after everything. But there was no collision, for the Senate almost unanimously annulled the elections as a farce, showing that ideas of right and wrong are strongly implanted in Buenos Ayres, for the Lower Chamber had almost unanimously approved the same elections the day before.

The result of this decision is, that the Deputies take their seats, the elections being considered, for them, most moral, legal, and edifying! The Senators on the other hand refuse all contact with candidates of what they repute, a disgraceful, swindling and outrageous attempt to get into the Sala through the windows! The doors of the Chambers of Deputies are thrown open, and the French and English, who the legislators of the country proudly match to the Acropolis of fame in the South American Athens. The Senate, however, after some hours of debate, did not vote to annul the elections. It is generally thought the sensitive consciences of the new Deputies will not remove at the Senatorial condemnation, where they are obliged to play a desperate 'partie' of cards. A little while since Mr. S. appeared as usual at his post, seemed in high spirits, and kept looking himself freely. Lord D. was also in high spirits and great luck. The evening ended by the D. selling of the banker, who pined, looked ill, and then said, 'Well, my Lord, I thought I had done you for once. Look what I have got to bring me luck' and Mr. Banker produced from his pocket the end of the rope on which Calverly had just hanged poor Wright. It seems that with this talismanic fortune is fettered. 'Very clever, my dear S. —' says his antagonist; 'but not clever enough to produce the other end of the rope, which was longer. On the Monday evening after the last execution, the two players appeared and set to work. S. said, 'I have beaten you by luck,' says he, 'I put a fresh bit to day, longer than yours.' 'And I have been shamefully robbed,' says his Lord; 'Calverly the five ends of the five ropes used in this morning.' 'Your Lordship forgets this time that there are two ends to a rope,' retorts the pleased and winning banker. 'Is that a pleasant and natural story of two members of the Club de la Liberte? But then, you see that is now so close to London that they are like one city.'—Lond. Letter.

THE STATE OF ALARMS IN THIS TOWN has not diminished. There are vague rumors of revolution, and everybody feels as if standing on a volcano. To day there is every possibility of a renewal of the Crudo-Cocido riots.

We do not know whether the Races will come off to day at Belgrano. The Northern Railway advertises a special train, but the authorities ought to prevent all assemblages in such general excitement.

It may not be amiss to advise all our readers, especially those recently come to the country, not to go out of doors after six o'clock. Besides the risk of casual encounters with drunken and armed ruffians at street corners, they run the chance of passing the night in the Police, if unable to produce their passport to the night-patrols.

To-day there will be a function at Merlo, on the occasion of the reception of Mr. Hood, American citizen, into the Roman Catholic Church. The parish priest, Rev. Mr. Dillon, will officiate and preach in English.

LOCAL EVENTS.

Reports.—On the 20th the British barque Rosetta, cleared out for the Antilles, with a mixed cargo, of which the city port native produce was 90 live mules and 70 hives fodder. On the same day the Swedish barque, Carl Georg, cleared out for England, with 422 tons horse, 3353 tons horse, 118 tons horse dust; also the Brazilian brig Paqueta Catharina for the Brazil, with 1200 quintals jerked beef.

Scene at the Chambers.—On the afternoon of Thursday, when the row and noise were at full blast in Calle Moreno, two ladies, of moderate age, made their appearance in a carriage, and addressing the assembled multitude of 'right men and loose women,' presented them with flowers. 'We are not aware,' says the Tribune, 'who these gentle dames were, but in spite of the riotous confusion, and the fact that they still continued their task of benevolent patriots! Leap year has not yet expired.'

El Toro Quingo.—The 'Nacion Argentina,' which, we believe, is a Government newspaper, has an article in yesterday's issue, entitled 'Cheap enough,' in which it enumerates the low sums paid to the Federal (U.S.) wounded soldiers. We have looked through the article, and find that the Government is paying 30 cents per day to 4000 wounded soldiers, as well as 2000 regular soldiers, and that the Government is paying 10 cents per day to 4000 regular soldiers, and that the Government is paying 10 cents per day to 4000 regular soldiers.

Attempted Assassination.—His Excellency Dr. Rawson, prime minister of the Republic, and one of the very, very few men admitted by all parties to be above the universal corruption of B. Ayron politicians, was stabbed by a Crudo, in Calle Moreno. Sr. Jose M. Caza succeeded in securing the assassin. Our Argentine Articles was not hurt, and we were glad to see him yesterday in the street.

London Letter

Arrests of the late execution in London. I have read a story which I hasten to translate for your readers. It is always gratifying to show how thoroughly the French understand the social life of that capital to which man, if a good sleeper, may travel in three days, and dining on the Boulevard, after some hours of debate, did not vote to annul the elections.

What a Shame!—According to the Crudo prints, it was only Cocido chancers and botanists who were intoxicated. Does the Club Libertad expect to have any members, if it does not distribute liquor to the chancers and botanists? It is perfectly absurd to suppose that, even the lowest classes of the population will take any active part in the riots, if they are not bribed with cards and cigars. We know we were Argentine electors, would not, joking apart, we have anything to do with the Argentine in Buenos Ayres, and do seriously did not feel degraded in his own estimation when he saw the class of people who assembled on the streets in Calle Moreno, and who constituted, in reality, the political strength of this city. Some years ago, the mess of the 44th Regiment of British troops, who had just had about, owing to the behaviour of its members, that for a long time no man, with the slightest claims to respectability would accept, still less receive, a commission to do with such a compound of rovelism and bribery. This is not only 'Standard' crowd, for the newspapers of the two parties will not get into what is being done in elections.

La Pinta.—This toy steamer arrived at Montevideo from Rio de Janeiro on Thursday last. She is a small iron steamer, of 145 tons, 149 feet in length, and 43 feet in breadth. She was built by Messrs. James and George Thompson, of Glasgow, is a paddle propelled boat, and has an engine of 75 horse-power. She is intended to run between Rio de Janeiro and the neighbouring ports. This steamer has a large open railing, without deck, there not being required, for the trips last only for a few hours. She has also a saloon set apart for ladies. She made the run from Glasgow to Rio de Janeiro in 47 days, having touched at Cork, Vigo, Lisbon, Teneriffe, Bahia and Pernambuco. Her average rate of speed during the passage was 12 and 13 knots.—(T.M.)

Rosario.—The mails from Chile last arrived in Rosario on Friday last, but at the time of sailing of the Payon the general news had not been published. The Ferro Carril publishes the result of the Chilean elections, which had been hotly contested. The date for 31 departments are as follows:—16 of the Government clerical party. 15 of the Mont. Varietas. The sugar crop of Tucuman, this year has been upwards of 100,000,000 arrobas, and is equal to the best Pernambuco white sugar.

Parana.—From Parana there is not a word of news of any public interest. The gentleman who has the misfortune to be married to Mrs. Serrano, who so cruelly insulted another lady, has decided here on emigration. This will have a very bad effect on society, as the hands of Buenos Ayres, if they follow his example, will be in constant low water.—(T.M.)

THEATRE IN CHILIVO.

There was to have been a grand theatrical performance in this agricultural town. How do the Chilivianos show their appreciation of actors and actresses? cities, the pleased audiences generally cast bouquets of flowers, in Chilivo we suppose they slide bundles of cholera and cholera.

At half-past three p.m. on Friday, a party addressed the members of the Club Libertad in the small market place in the Calle Moreno, in the following wet-blanket style:—'The laws of the line are coming down upon you; you should not resist them; people should not fire on the line at their approach; retire upon the Plaza of the Chambers. The third and fourth sentences are somewhat ambiguous, and might easily be construed into advice to the people to reserve their fire till they got inside, and should any prominent head present a good mark, they blaze away, and on the principle of Peter Simple's triangular debt, hit somebody, don't care whom.'

Bridges.—The bridge built by Sur. Hunt, for Government, at the Cabildo street, and the bridge built by Sur. Hunt, and has been handed over for the use of the public. The same engineer, Hunt, has also commenced another bridge over the Rio de Ayres. The first instalment of 40,000 dols. has been paid towards the expenses of the work.

The Month of May.—On the 23rd past, we intended to inaugurate the new section of the Western Railway from Moreno to the Villa Juja. On the three days of national rejoicing next month Mr. Wel's account will be lodged in the world, freely and willingly, from the Plaza de la Victoria, in accordance with his agreement with the Government.

Notes for the curious.—The proprietors of the Boulevard Canelier, in Rio de Janeiro, have received from New York an immense machine for making lemonade refreshments, which is capable of manufacturing 1000 of these refreshing drinks in three minutes. In 1842 there were 6,000 of these machines in Great Britain, and it is calculated that 10,000 men are employed in engine building. There are 8,258 free-masons, 500,000 active members of inactive masons, there are about 3,000,000.

Am. Auction.—The action of fine impertinent negreete rams took place on Friday at St. John's market. The animals were selected from some of the most celebrated German Establishments, and hence were of a very pure and fine type. The prices were very good, but the lot was sold by Mr. Michael Murray, Leeson-st. Mr. Peter Han of Lujan, who became the owners of some beautiful animals. We ought to congratulate our two enterprising countrymen on having purchased some of the real negreete breed, and we have no doubt but in their respective districts they will be duly appreciated. We wish every Argentine citizen, who is not a low such good examples, as it is thus they will make their business doubly possible, as the negreete breed gives that quality to the wool which all desire, viz. quantity and quality.

The Gallows.—Some old women are constantly showing in their advice when it is not particularly required, and others of the same sex and antiquity are perverse in retelling their own dash of most improper times. The N. Argentina gave us a rap on the knuckles for reporting the outrage in this place our colleagues most inopportunistly gave a translation of a long rigid manufacturing of sentences written by Luis Blanc on the subject of the capital execution of a man in London for murdering. He (Mr. B.) is lately trying to advocate the abolition of capital punishment, and really his statement reads almost as if he were a member of the don's stories, and has every bit as much truth in it as any of those works.

Mr. Luis Blanc makes one statement which we sincerely wish, was a truthful case. Being a member of the N. Argentina, he states that 'Jack Ketch is the superior Guard of morals in England.' We wish to heavens that he was here! It would be a most mortifying. Mr. Luis Blanc moreover, but little delirious in advocating such a move in Great Britain, where he has enjoyed a great deal of hospitality for so long a time. It looks remarkably like the N. M. Blanc had a presentiment that his head would be cut off in the month which it has escaped so often.
