REVIEW FOR EUROPE.

Whatever room there may be for improvement in the industrial condition of the country, our political state could not be better. Never since the time of Rivadavia has there been a ruler more beloved and respected by the Argentines of every shade of politics, than the man who at present sways the destiny of the Argentine Nation—Bartholomew Mitre.

Business in the interior provinces is much better than we have noticed for some time. The silver mines in San Juan are at work, and, if we are to believe reports, giving enormous yields.

Nothing can be more surprising and at the same time more disgraceful, than the neglect of every successive Government, since the Independence, to describe an effective military 'cordon,' which would extend from the Cordillera to the Atlantic, a work now shewn to be no less easy of execution than transcendental in its importance.

Now that the republic is happily pacified, and enterprises like the Central Argentine railway are set on foot, it is impossible for the National Government to delay any longer the serious consideration of so vital an element of public tranquillity, progress, and organization as a national frontier.

The Rio Colorado rises in that part of the Andes contiguous to Mendoza, almost in direct line from Buenos Ayres, in 83 S. lat. and 69 W. long.

The advantages to be gained from this scheme, may be thus summed up. 1st. An effective and uniform 'cordon' of frontier posts, garrisoned by proper troops, under experienced officers, acting in concert, and able to lend speedy and mutual assistance at any moment.

Whoever takes up the map of this republic, as designed by Argentine geographers, will find for its southern frontier Cape Horn and the ocean, the province of Buenos Ayres being supposed to extend from Arroyo Medio to Terra del Fuego.

accomplish the greatest attention is paid to lands in Santa Fé and Cordova, and several parties have already purchased estates at from 3,000 to 4,000 silver dollars per square league, within about 35 leagues of Rosario.

A very important land law has been introduced into the Santa Fé Legislature, authorizing the sale of all Government lands in that province, at a fixed price, varying from five thousand silver dollars per square league to two thousand, according to the locality; furthermore, to induce immigration, land is offered free to all who wish to settle on it, provided they introduce on such lands a capital of sheep to the value of one thousand silver dollars.

Mr. John Duguid, a leading merchant of this city, is another champion in the great cause of industrial advancement. He is at present in the Province of Cordova, inspecting the lands and gathering valuable statistics.

sober man, who lands on our shores, is morally certain of being a man of capital in a few years, if he but persevere and earn the good-will of his employer. All the sheepfarmers in this country, what has been their capital in the commencement? a spade and shovel.

PAUNERO'S FRONTIER PROJECT

recovery of 20,000 sq. leagues (a territory three times as large as England) of the finest pasture lands. 4th. A saving of 80 per cent in the number and expenses of the present various frontier forces.

The difficulties to the enterprise are met in this manner: 1st. Most of the Indian tribes would probably refuse peaceful terms, and it would be necessary to drive them southwards across the Colorado; which Paunero undertakes to do, with five corps (each 1000 men) starting simultaneously from Mendoza, San Luis, Rojas, Atul, and Bahia Blanca.

'arroyos' was a frequent and disagreeable feature of the journey, and when at last the British and Argentine pacificators reached the estancia Escondido, they did full justice to the 'puchero' and 'asado' prepared for their bodily refreshment, after which they were fortunate enough to find beds, thus escaping the hardship of sleeping on 'recados.'
