REVIEW FOR EUROPE.

Whatever room there may be for improvement in the industrial condition of the country, our political state could not be better. Never since the time of Rivadavia has there been a ruler more beloved and respected by the Argentines...

Since the falling of the French pack, Congress, responding to the suggestions of the Government, has authorized the President to subscribe for two thousand shares of the Argentine Central Railway...

The different ministers have sent in their reports, but being too long for publication, and containing matters of slight interest to our foreign readers, we have given them in silence.

A project for establishing several lines of steamers in the rivers, is still before Congress. We have reason to believe that, notwithstanding the opposition, Messrs. Harrison and Monsilla will ultimately succeed in getting the contract.

This is a matter which ought to interest our London readers, as, if the project be passed, large steamers are to be introduced in England for the River Plate.

The subscription to the shares in the Argentine Central Railway Company has continued, both here and in the provinces.

Mr. Samuel H. Philips, the American Consul for Liverpool, is at present travelling over the proposed route in order that on his return he may be able to draw up a full and complete observation on the nature and quality of the lands belonging to the Company.

Another man, who lands on our shores, is morally certain of being a man of capital in a few years, if he be persevering and earn the good-will of his employer.

A very important law has been introduced into the Senate by the Legislature, authorizing the sale of all Government lands in that province, at a fixed price, varying from five thousand dollars per square league to two thousand dollars per square league.

Mr. John Duguid, a leading merchant of this city, is another champion in the great cause of industrial advancement. He is at present in the Province of Cordova, inspecting the lands and gathering around him a large number of gentlemen...

Business in the interior provinces is much better than we have noticed for some time. The silver mines in San Juan are at work, and, if we are to believe reports, giving enormous yields.

Nothing can be more surprising and at the same time more disgraceful, than the neglect of every successive Government, since the Independence, to describe an effective military 'ordon', which would extend from the Cordillera to the Atlantic, a work now shown to be no less easy of execution than transcendental in its importance.

Now that the republic is happily pacified, and enterprises like the Central Argentine railway are set on foot, it is impossible for the National Government to delay any longer the serious consideration of so vital an element of public tranquillity, progress, and organization as a national frontier.

Mr. Riestra's project, for the redemption of the currency, will shortly be before the Provisional Legislature. It is hardly possible that it will be passed, as in this country the only subject of speculation is the currency, which, strange to say, is bought and sold daily at the board of brokers, precisely the same as railway shares are at home.

The Rio Colorado rises in that part of the Andes contiguous to Mendoza, almost in direct line from Buenos Ayres, in 33 S. lat. and 69 W. long.

The Ministers arrived at San Jose on the 13th, at 5.30 p.m., where they were received with joyful demonstrations.

recovery of 20,000 sq. leagues of territory three times as large as England of the finest pasture lands. 4th. a saving of 60 per cent in the number and expense of the present various frontier forces.

PAUNERO'S FRONTIER PROJECT

Whoever takes up the map of the republic, as designed by Argentine geographers, will find for its southern frontier Cape Horn and the ocean, the province of Buenos Ayres being proposed to extend from Arroyo Medio to Terra del Fuego.

General Paunero understands, better than any other man in Buenos Ayres, the nature and difficulty of the task he undertakes, and he believes he is capable of fulfilling his word.

LATEST FROM COLONIA.

The town of Colonia, which is properly in front of Buenos Ayres, is badly in want of an English hotel.

'arroyos' was a frequent and disagreeable feature of the journey, and when at least the British and Argentine pacificators reached the estancia Escondido, they did full justice to the 'pachyderm' and 'asada' prepared for their bodily refreshment.

Important from San Juan.

We had the pleasure, yesterday, of a visit from a foreign gentleman resident in the above province, who gives most flattering accounts of things in general, and the silver mines in particular.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The state of Barracas is now so awful that there is scarcely any communication with the city; people are obliged to exist on cocks and hens, as the butchers' yards are done up.

On the 13th a cascade occurred at the Field-of-the-Clash-of-Gold, comprising Messrs. Drummond, Saravia, Lamas, Castellanos, Dr. Bustos and Col. Perez, all looking considerably ill.
