WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1864.

ARGENTINE INTERESTS.

Our present system of Government seems so identical with that of the United States that at first sight it would appear that our constitution was framed in Washington and not Buenos Ayres, but a minute investigation of the obligations of the ruled and the duties of the rulers would soon convince the impartial foreigner of the wide and important difference which exists between the two systems.

The Argentine nation, ruled as it is at present, never can progress in any branch of industry or manufacture which requires the fostering care of legislative or national protection, and this is simply because our institution have been framed more with the view to rule a people than build up a nation.

The present National Government is so admirably adapted for a country thickly populated and in a most flourishing condition, but for a nation such as this, in as it were, the very morning of its existence, it is not only unsuitable but actually tends to retard the progress of the country at large.

In the United States of North America the most important branch of the executive is the agricultural department, the very one which is unknown in this country. Until the revolution broke out the workings of that department were seen from Maine to Florida. From Long Island to the Rocky Mountains; the secretary of this department was, after the President, the most influential man in the Union—and let our readers bear in mind that although Argentina have initiated North American in their institutions, they have studiously omitted this most important of all.

Any man to judge the Argentine Republic by the debates going on in Congress, which is alleged by some historians to be a very safe mode of judging a nation or a people, would be led to believe that the industry of this country was so advanced, that our manufacturers were so numerous and flourishing that these subjects required no further legislation, and that the Congress men who sit every day in the Plaza 25 de Mayo were not the representatives of miserable half starved provinces but of a powerful republic boasting of forty millions of inhabitants.

Why, we take up the records of the North American Congress, and we find these Argentine legislators sit at present occupied discussing subjects which in recent years were often mooted in Washington.

The cold, cruel, systematic indifference of our senators and deputies to everything that concerns the industrial progress of the country has inflamed our animosity against this Argentine Congress, which wastes its time in long windy discussions on rights and privileges which are neither comprehended nor appreciated beyond the paved streets of Buenos Ayres.

Of one thing there cannot be the slightest doubt, and that is, that either our legislators are too far ahead of the people whom they rule, or the people are too far behind our legislators; in either case the result is the same—Congress makes laws which are never carried out, and the people adopt customs which never become laws.

not our intention, but when we see the same jog-trot proceedings going on in Congress every day every year, we cannot withhold from making these few cursory remarks.

We have a minister of government, a minister of war, a minister of education, a minister of finance, and a minister of foreign affairs, and then we have a minister to the Court of St. James and St. Cloud, we have another minister on his way to the United States, and if we are rightly informed we have some half dozen others in embryo; and where does the money come from to pay all the salaries and outlays for these ministers, their attaches and secretaries? Go ask the starving gauchos of the interior—ask the unfortunate Argentine who is torn from his home and his family to defend the frontier—ask the miserable farmer in the provinces, whose industry is limited to a few cobs of maize for the want of seed, for the want of capital, for the want of proper legislation.

We call the attention of Argentines to the great want of an agricultural department in our executive; we can dispense with diplomatic dinners for the present, we question even if we would feel the want of the ministers to distribute seeds and farming implements for the country would be to turn half our ministers into agricultural agents empowered by Congress to distribute seeds and farming implements amongst the neglected provinces.

We hold that there are too many engaged in the administration of public affairs in this country, and that the condition of a nation is dangerous in the extreme where three-fourths of the community are engaged in ruling the remaining one-fourth. It may not become us as foreigners to speak too severely the introduction of expensive habits so hostile to republican simplicity, but if the Argentine Republic was even not so poor as it is, it would, with all our ministers, require more than the genius of Mr. Chase to make both ends meet.

Few in Buenos Ayres are acquainted with the unpolluted state of the people in the interior. It is high time that Congress should do something for them; the people want seeds, want money, want farming implements—why does not Congress supply them?

THE PALERMO ALBUM. This fortnight's pictures are interesting in subject, being purely characteristic of the River Plate, and well-conceived in grouping and expression.

The Vigil of the Dead represents a custom of Christian piety, on the eve of All Souls day. The scene is laid in the churchyard of Victoria, Entre Rios, and the sunset of a summer evening throws a soothing mellowness over the surrounding landscape. In the middle of the picture stands the emblem of Christianity, encircled by a small railing on which are hung funeral garlands. To the right is a group of an old woman and a boy praying beside a grave, and a young man and girl placing lanterns and fresh flowers near Patagonas. As the Indians take the credit of these deposits in the Colomado banks, they often draw on three days after sight, but these transactions have been protested by Sr. Iniero. Many old salts are to be found in Buenos Ayres. That kind imported from Gibraltar is called Rock salt.

40. Indian Arms. A bow and quiver exhibited by Sr. Sarmiento, Quisque in the picture is very exact in pulling the long bow. A lance belongs to Juan San. A javo and bolas worn by the late lanated general Guecho, of the Indian cavalry brigade.

41. Argentine Salt. Very outside the Attic, and found mostly in large beds near Patagonas. As the Indians take the credit of these deposits in the Colomado banks, they often draw on three days after sight, but these transactions have been protested by Sr. Iniero. Many old salts are to be found in Buenos Ayres. That kind imported from Gibraltar is called Rock salt.

42. Camp cooking apparatus. This exceedingly simple contrivance is only an iron bar, called an "asador"; it is so portable that it may be used as a walking stick, when you go out of your house at night, meantime it will serve for cooking any joint however large.

43. Argentine Salt. Very outside the Attic, and found mostly in large beds near Patagonas. As the Indians take the credit of these deposits in the Colomado banks, they often draw on three days after sight, but these transactions have been protested by Sr. Iniero. Many old salts are to be found in Buenos Ayres. That kind imported from Gibraltar is called Rock salt.

many being bare-foot, and others, including the captain, have untanned "botas de potro." The foreground is occupied by three cavaliers, with lances, of whom carry the red cross which gives their army the name of Colorados, and seems a burlesque on the crusades. The third is evidently a General or of the like, and is receiving despatches from an officer on foot; his horse is a fine animal, caparisoned with silver mountings, and the rider wears a handsome white poncho. The ensigns carry lassos which may be considered their real emblem, for the present war has been directed entirely against cattle, and the lasso often used than lance or musket. The background shows the suburbs of Paysandú, the picture having been taken during the old and last unsuccessful siege by Flores' rebel followers.

31. Pedigree Wheat. This sample was brought to Buenos Ayres by Mr. Phibbs, from Europe, and is supposed to be very prolific. Nevertheless, it has not been tried in the River Plate, the name 'pedigree' being offensive to Republicans, and suggestive of aristocracy, nominally, &c.

32. Ready-reckoner. The cabinet bearing this name contains a revolver and 100 patent cartridges; it is very useful in attending meetings, elections, or evening parties, enabling the possessor to settle accounts a la Tuluca, with any one making an unreasonable claim.

33. Meat-cutter. The machine so marked is an American invention, patented by Dr. Cornwall: the upper and lower rolls cut simultaneously. Visitors requested to take care of their fingers when the operator shows the machine in motion.

34. There are two kinds: those used in the Argentine Congress, and those adapted at camp elections. The first are worked by a backward movement of the left hand, and must be kept well-oiled. The second require a horse 'a la tiro,' and are usually managed by alcaides.

35. Bigger stipes. This is a pretty collection.—The pictures of the Parana, "The Cabildo patients," "The Garrison of Bahia Blanca," "The San Juan Rifles," "The Flores bandits," &c.

36. Argentine Salt. Very outside the Attic, and found mostly in large beds near Patagonas. As the Indians take the credit of these deposits in the Colomado banks, they often draw on three days after sight, but these transactions have been protested by Sr. Iniero. Many old salts are to be found in Buenos Ayres. That kind imported from Gibraltar is called Rock salt.

37. Reserved beef. This method is not the Olden or B.uben, but one invented by a German land surveyor who lately succeeded in saving his bacon in a wonderful manner on the Indian frontier.

38. Camp cooking apparatus. This exceedingly simple contrivance is only an iron bar, called an "asador"; it is so portable that it may be used as a walking stick, when you go out of your house at night, meantime it will serve for cooking any joint however large.

Subscriptions in Paper Money.

The Directors, wishing to enlarge the operations of the Society, have accepted the request of many people in this city, and determined to issue shares payable in Paper Money of Buenos Ayres, under the following conditions:

- Article 1st.—From the 1st of April, 1861, shares shall be issued to such persons as may wish to pay in Paper Money of Buenos Ayres, and in accordance with Article 17 chapter 6 of the Statutes of the Society, the lowest sum receivable being $200 annually, payable in ten annuities, subject to the following rules:

1st.—For Paper Money Subscribers sections will be assigned and kept separate from Silver Money Subscribers.

2nd.—The liquidation of the sum belonging to the sections of Paper Money Subscribers will be administered according to Article 31 of the Statutes, and for account of these particular sections.

By these means the Directors hope to gain its object, which is to enable the poorer classes to enjoy all the advantages of the Society.

61 CORRIENTES 61. SAVINGS BANK.

WATERBURY & CO.,
No. 103 Calle de Cagallo, BUENOS AYRES.

The immense advantages of Accumulated Current are now generally felt and appreciated in the two great emporiums of the River Plate, Montevideo and Buenos Ayres, that there are very few merchants who fail to keep one at least in which they place the most confidence.

The Bank of Montevideo and Co. in Montevideo has already provided for the working classes in that city a safe and profitable repository for their savings.

The sums deposited in that bank are not only accumulating, but daily increasing, and already reach a very large amount.

These advantages have not hitherto been enjoyed in this city by an immense number of clerks, artisans, working men, and servants of all classes and conditions, who are equally interested in putting their savings out at interest, thus providing themselves with a reserve fund in case of need, sickness, or old age, instead of squandering them in the immoral gaming, in lottery, and other frivolities.

The Bank of Montevideo and Co. of this city, following the noble example of their firm in Calle Cagallo, from now on will Three Days, and on Saturdays and Holidays from Ten to Twelve o'clock for the reception of the savings of the classes already mentioned.

The Bank will deliver to each depositor a pass book, in which will be entered the amount deposited and withdrawn.

The deposit is permitted at any time to withdraw the whole or part of the sum deposited: in the former case the interest will be calculated up to date.

The Bank of Montevideo and Co. is respectfully invited by the Public by the benefit derived from the course of its operations, which are regulated on the strictest and soundest principles, and always directed to promote the general welfare.

The Bank of Montevideo and Co. are also pleased to state that new branches of their business will render considerable service to the working classes of Buenos Ayres and its neighbourhood.

Buenos Ayres, September 13, 1861.

W. Waterbury & Co.

CONDITIONS.

First.—The Bank reserves at interest any sum from Twenty-five Dollars currency Silver Dollars upwards.

Second.—The interest allowed is six per cent. 6 1/2 per annum, which is liquidated on the withdrawal.

Third.—The depositors can at any time withdraw the whole or part of the money deposited.

Fourth.—These many deposited checks receive five thousand dollars currency, or we should deliver to the depositor if he wishes any sum in accordance with the value established by the bank.

Fifth.—In case the depositor loses his pass book, it can be replaced by another on paying twelve dollars currency, and advertising the loss in the public newspaper.
